We Develop the D tach  Bowing Above the Middle (A.M.)

When we play above the middle of the bow, make sure to use only the lower arm from the elbow down. The upper arm is used only when going from one string to another. Play as near to the tip as you can without the bow sliding towards the finger-board. Try placing your right elbow against the wall playing open D in quarter notes in order to memorize the sensation of drawing the bow with the lower arm. As you approach the tip you must get the feeling that you are drawing the bow away from the body. Use the full width of the hair with the stick directly above the hair. The D tach  bowing is a smooth stroke.

The notes marked with crosses (+) are to be plucked with the left hand.
